A Moderate Computation of the Expences in Provisions, spent in the Cities of London and Westminster, and the Places within the Weekly Bills of Mortality, for a Year, Month, Week, Day, Hour and Minute, sounded upon this modest Supposition, That there may be but Million of People within the said Cities and Weekly Bills of Mortality, observed by a scrutinous Enquiry i. most of the Particulars.

Note, That in this Computation, there is allowed seven Days in a Week, and four Weeks, or 28 Days to a Month, and thirteen of those Months to a Year, consisting of 364 days, the odd day not reckoned.

And also you are to understand, that in all those Computations, every thing is reckoned rather lower than higher in each Computation, as may appear in

First, As to the number of People, which is computed at a Million in the Cities of London and Westminster, and within the compass of the weekly Bills of Mortality; but it's generally supposed to be a far greater number.

Secondly, There is computed only a thousand of Beeves spent weekly; but it is rationally supposed that there are a great many more spent in a Week, which has been plainly made out by some of the Tanners in Leaden-hall, that suppose that one Week with another in the whole Year, there are bought 1500 raw Hides from the Butchers in a Week, most of which are sold by London Butchers.

The same Method hath been observed throughout the whole Hypothesis; for in a thing of this nature, it is impossible to come to exactness in the Computation, therefore it is better to reckon under than over: for you must note, that this is but an Estimate made according to the best Informations that could be collected from some of the best knowing Persons in every particular.

Wherein we may note in this Estimate the singular Providence of the Almighty, to make such a wonderful Provision for the Support of such a prodigious number of People, and to be supplied with plenty of all things for the Life of Man, in such great and populous places as these two Cities are; which for these, and all other of God's wonderful Providences, let us give to him all Praise, Honour and Glory, now and for evermore. Amen.
